The Times of India says, "on post arriving that Mr. N. E. Lush, the celebrated traveller, about to return to England. The information which he acquired during his famous tour through the most frequented parts of China, and the knowledge he was enabled to derive from it, should any further complications arise out of the present situation. His journey through Siberia alone, and by an entirely new track, is among the most wonderful feats of modern travel. While in the late expedition, which ended so fatally for Mr. Mayguy, his knowledge of the people with whom they had to deal was invaluable to the extent of the mission. It is a pity that Mr. Lush, who has been in the Foreign Office, and is a pity that the Indian Government should, at this time, be the service of one of the few men who could give such valuable information about the country of which it has been so long the desire of the future policy is likely to be hostile rather than friendly."

at Kewlown place.

At this stage the prisoner was re-arrested last night a gang of burglars attacked a at Kewlown city, and made off with a considerable amount of property. They had about six soldiers, one of whom was murdered by a single shot. It is supposed the prisoner was among the burglars.

The prisoner was expended until Monday the 24th instants.

ORCHELY READING A CHILD.

A Chinese girl, residing in Elgin Street, summoned by the police for cruelly knocking her child around as her servant.

Lenny Asky, Chinaman contable 240, saw the defendant beat the girl on the forehead he she should not do that. She roared that the girl was her servant, and also his right to beat her. This was outside the Elgin Street.

The little girl was then placed in the street box, because very blind, and was afraid to speak and cry. She was then taken home and surrounded by Mr. Russell that they were not afraid to go to school, and that she would be the benefit of other small girls like her who were called servants, but was in reality slaves. The marks on her arms showed the blood from the blows.

The little girl was still afraid to speak or why she was beaten. She said, however, wanted to go back to her mistress.

A defendant said she beat her for being disobedient.

She was fined in the sum of $10.

The following extract from a letter from Zealand, written by a late resident in Siam, contains interesting details of the life of the natives, especially as respects their habits and customs, which are very strange. Presumably California are very plentiful, and we shall have sport when the season opens. This year is a very wonderful one for fruit; all we want is plenty, and the vines I planted two years ago are loaded with grapes. Cucumber and melons are very nice and plentiful, we have gages and watermelons, and some pumpkins, and apples. I can't put on the list all we have, but log, clean and white, and the lot to come counted by the thousand. The orchard recently purchased has been neglected, still we have a few splendid ones. These trees and plants year shall have abundance of other crops monthly.—N. C. Daily News.

his account of the termination of the into the Yunnan affair. This seems enough, and it is not impossible that he may at this present occupy the completion of his own report for the information of the British Government. It seems less certain that he declined to treat with Tien-tai Li at Tientsin; and this gives us no likelihood of the view that he was with the Tzung-li Yamen were formally off. There can be no doubt that Mr. Hart cannot an intimate connection with Li at Tientsin. It is also very probable, and it may be assumed that Mr. Hart is anxious to intimate the willingness of the Tientsin Yamen to accede to some portion of the British Minister's demands. But we cannot assume that the acceptance was important, things would not be so much in the air, they appear to be at the present moment, and we have now that the head of the Chinese Yamen, says, Mr. Hart, in his letter to the British Minister, "I am not a desperado." This can hardly be the case, as from Peking prove that Mr. Hart was the 5th, and prepared visit for Tientsin the 8th, and returned to Shanghai the 10th. It is a curious circumstance, and some connection with the difficulties of the Chinese Government; but there are plausible reasons for his coming, altogether apart from the Yamen, and the Yamen, and attributes. We dread equally rational intelligence regarding the movements of Viceroy Shoo, of whom we hear that he is thinking, that he is actually in Shanghai, thus he is armed with power to treat with T. Wade, if Sir T. Wade will treat with him. Meanwhile, the Flying Squadron is of benefit to the Yamen, I put from the Yamen the ship was recalled by telegraph in a matter of days. We have 3 ships in the company of mine. We will leave this day or two for Danfoo. Daily News.

A telegram from Washington summarizes the nomination of General Hayes to be Governor by the National Republican Convention, Cincinnati, for President of the United States. General Hayes is the present Governor of the State of Ohio, to which office he has been elected by the electors of that State, and is of high personal character, and his appointment is certain. — *N.
